

HR HEALTH CHECK

Self Assessment for business leaders

Do you issue the Casual Employment Information Statement to casual staff?

Do you know the difference between an employee and a contractor, and understand the implications of 'sham contracting'?

Please choose 'yes' if you do not have any contractors and don't intend to engage any in the future.

Do you undertake work rights / visa entitlement verification for any staff without Australian citizenship?

If any of your employees are paid a flat rate or annual salary, are the arrangements you pay them better than what the employee/s would be entitled to if you paid as per the Award hourly rate and other applicable entitlements?

I am not sure, I have never checked this

We review this annually and are confident our flat rate and salaried employees are better off overall

With your annual salaried/flat rate employees do you have an annualised salary agreement in place which shows your employees how their annual salary (or flat rate) is calculated?

- ☐ I am not sure what this is, so we would not be doing this
- ☐ I tell staff what they would be paid under the Award and compare it to what their annual salary is that I pay them, but that is all
- ☐ I show staff an itemised table of how I calculated their annual salary/flat rate and this shows how they are compensated more than the Award requires (and by how much)

DREAMSTONE
HR

(02) 8320 9320
info@dreamstonehr.com.au

www.dreamstonehr.com.au
@dreramstoneHR

Created with Agolix